She was the most caring wonderful woman. Always taking care of others. I loved playing dominoes with her at my brothers house. She will be missed.

"Aunt Mary Jo, how do I get to Ben Taub Hospital?" Aunt Mary Jo knew alot about giving directions and I was always impressed with her responses. I noticed she did a lot of driving in and all around Houston area. So whenever I had the chance, I'd listen (like a student at the feet of the Master), study her body language and gleen nuggets of wisdom from from her expert answers...She usually got a good feel for where the person was driving from and would follow that with lane suggestions. "You wanna get in that middle lane and stay there all the way around the loop. Once you get closer to I-10, you need to ease over into that right hand lane, exit Fannin and it will take you pass the park, the zoo and into the medical center." Her little hand extended straight out in front of her to emphisize the direction you'd be arriving at. I found comfort in her words because she knew of what she spoke and you could rely on it to get you where you needed to be. Now, today, I can't help but feel like she's giving me direction again. I know she's leading us home, to the Father. With that little hand, small but strong-she waves us on to a resting place where she joins Uncle Raymond who's been waiting patiently; her exit lane free from pain and suffering she has arrived at her destination.
