“ Mrs. Peggy and family,

Please know that our most sincere prayers and deepest sympathy are with you all. We have prayed for Marc since there was a need to pray for his healing. Mrs. Peggy, I know a portion of what you sacrificed for the sake of your son, and I know that you do not believe that it was a sacrifice. (You were just being Marc's mother.) I too am a mother of a son who lives with traumatic brain injury. While I completely recognize and hold you in high regard for caring for the one who lived with the most involved of all brain injuries, I know what it is like to say, "Goodbye" to the son you birthed, learning to love a new son in the same day.

My heart has yearned for Marc to be healed, but I did not know how or when God was going to accomplish that miracle. I am certain that you and yours will miss Marc more than we could ever comprehend, but I have no doubt that the time without Marc will be short as measured time on a clock or calendar. This world is a miserable place to be, and Marc has his new body, glory to God, living in his eternal home. I envy him in many ways, but I continue to wrap you and yours up in prayers. The trumpet will soon sound, and you will see your boy, just as you knew him, again!

*"Weeping may tarry for the night, but joy comes in the morning." ~
Psalm 30:5*

Much love, continued prayers, and always sympathy,

Michele Brasher Kelly
